To Whom It May Concern – Re: William Monroe

I have worked with Wiliam Monroe (Bill), during the period February 2018 until now, March 2019, in my capacity as his line manager and Dean of Wintec College Saudi Arabia. Bill's position is EFL and Maths teacher to groups of Saudi males aged 18-30, where he has delivered to students on both the Cambridge PET programme and those on the Vocational Associate and Full Diploma curriculum.

During this time Bill has proved to be an enthusiastic member of the team, he is a valued staff member and has provided much support and curriculum development and innovation to his colleagues.

Bill has been responsible for the development and delivery of the Math curriculum for our college ensuring that the inputs dovetail into the academic requirements of the vocational programmes and he has also provided valuable curriculum expertise in both the development and the delivery of the English for Special Purposes syllabi, an area which he has co-ordinated throughout this year.

His classroom management and planning has proved that he always gets the best out of his groups, varying his techniques in order to develop their academic progress in a systematic and focussed way. His ability to manage classes has been proven without question based upon a process of mutual respect which he fosters at all times.

As part of his work at the college Bill has taken on the additional role as lead teacher in order to assist in the general management of the college. This was an area that Bill volunteered into and has proved to be valuable in assisting in organisational supervision. A part of this activity has been the mentoring of colleagues and the delivery of in house Continual Professional Development (CPD), two areas that Bill has progressed with enthusiasm and professionalism, sharing his expertise with his contemporaries in a constructive effective manner.

Lesson observations have confirmed that Bill is able to rapidly engage students in a very professional and efficient manner, steering individual learning in a logical fashion to both consolidate and extend their knowledge. He has demonstrated he is able to stretch and challenge his students facilitating their development and progress, driving them towards the maximum thresholds of their ability. As part of his role Bill has also provided valuable counselling and support for his students.

Bill is reliable, honest and trustworthy, well respected by his students and colleagues and is a valued member of the team and an excellent team player. I would have no hesitation in recommending Bill as a teacher for EFL related subjects as he would be a great asset to any linguistic department, or indeed STEM related discipline area.

Yours sincerely
